Keynote Speaker

Mr. Julian Young

Mr. Julian Young has worked with Nova Scotia’s Department of Health and Prevention and Protection for the past seven years. In 2010, he provided the leadership to establish Nova Scotia’s first injury prevention strategy and has recently led the steering committee for the transition of the strategy. Julian has held a variety of positions within the Nova Scotia government over the past 14 years, and prior to his current role, managed the provincial trauma care system. Throughout his career, Julian has been instrumental in shaping evidence-based public policy and strategically advancing innovative health care, injury prevention, and public health policies. The expertise of Nova Scotia’s creators and innovators has been a driving force to provide a healthier and safer place for people to grow, live, work, and age.
